

GOLF BALL WITH TEMPERATURE INDICATOR

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A golf ball having an integral means for sensing temperature whereby a golfer can readily determine if a golf ball is at the optimum temperature for play. For purposes of indicating temperature, the ball incorporates a thermochromic section that will change color or become transparent or translucent at a predetermined temperature. The thermochromic section may be printed in such a manner to indicate the condition of the ball.